Germany ladiets Theif.

An English statesman has said that you cannot indict a nation. Whether or not that is true, a nation can indict finelf. Germany has done so through its militarism run mad regardless of human welfare. But against a nopposite extreme and as assurance of ability to serve humanity in need, it should be the hope and purpose of every patriotic American that the American nation shall not carry the peace ideal to the point where the nation would stand self indicted of nalional senility.

If our navy equaled England's, it is quite likely that the Guifflight and the Lusitania would still be affoat. Such a navy would add to the dignity, wisdom and force of our presidents notes to Germany and all other nations. Indeed, it would decrease the number of incidents making utilizatiums necessary.

Nevertheless, the president has op-pertunity to immortalize his name in the service of humanity and on the page of history by now crystallying therican nationalism and placing it in its rightful position of influence and power. The American people have the resources and will support him in all things right measured by sound and robust American ideals.

JOHNSON REPLIES TO BERYA.

Giltor El Pano Herald: 10 heras.

I wonder where Carlos F. Berna gets his pipe filled? Certainly not at the same place I do to have such dreams as that the United States is afraid of Mexico. Even marihuana won't do it. Will Mr. Berna kindly inform me where it comes from

It comes from
Does the past history of the American people show that the United States has ever been afraid of any country?
Boes the invasion of Mexico under Scott and Taylor show that we are afraid of Mexico, when with a few thousand men we took possession of the entire country? And we went about it as though it was a summer plenic outing.

the entire country? And we went about it as though it was a summer plenic outing.

Does the incident of the Alamo, where to Santa Ana's army of 2500 and died to a man after wounding and killing 2000 of the besieging Mexicana, show that we are afraid of Mexicana or Nexico?

Has Sr. Berns forgotten that a few hundred Tenants captured and made prisoner Mexico's president at the battle of San Jacinto? Santa Ana was cruel, but brave and a fighter, and if there were a few Santa Anas among the Mexican calamity howlers who stand out the street corners of El Paso walling their eyes, pulling their mustachios and oxfins every woman that passes, Mexico feday would, perhaps, but find herself in the distressful condition are is in.

Mr. Berna ways Germany laughe at there were a few Santa Anna among the Mexican calamity howers who alared on the street corners of II Paso willing their eyes, pulling their mustachios and oxinar every woman that passes. Mexico today would, perhaps, not find herself in the distrensful condition size is in.

Mr. Berna says Germany laughs at the United States. Such a hellef in evidence that Mr. Borna doesn't know what he is reading or else is absolutely devoid of any political sense. The mote Germany drafted to the United States in answer to the one we presented is find with courtesy and that fact and the promptness of her respir are sufficient evidence of her respect as far it is based on an entirely erropeous it is based on an entirely erropeous

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

Santa Pe, N. M., May 11. Permit me to express my opinions on capital punishment, not as a criminologist or as a reformer or a faddlet, but simply as a christian American gitten. Our national laws on capital punishment are peculiar. Each state has its own peculiarities. I believe such laws should be repealed, not because they are not enforced, but because they are barburian.

are not entoreed, but because they are barbarian.

The evolution of civilization is, perhaps, attested in no field better than in the field of penology. Civilization has changed the old theory and practices concerning the penalties for crime. Formerly it was inflicted as a matter of justice, in the same of an eye for eye, a touth for a touth, the sense of getting even of justice, in the sense of an eye for eye, a tooth for a tooth, the sense of getting even.

Criminals were boiled in oil, they were put upon from racks and their limbs drawn from their societs by machinery, they were put in harrais with sharp spikes on the inside and ridden down declivities; they were burned at stake; they were crucified and left to die a slow, agonizing death; they were guillottined and their heads exposed to gaping throngs, but gradually these harbarous practices, the result of fiendish and devilled thorder, yielded to the milder punishment of the gallowa. These hanging exhibitions drew great crowds, who came to the exhibition ground as people now go lo an exposition, and venders of knicknacks did a thriving business.

Again civilitation got in its work with the conclusion that these public exhibitions brutained the speciators and confributed to the crimes they were intended to prevent and punish. Now criminals are banged inside of inclosures and only a few selected witnesses are brutalized by the grewsome performance.

This hast relic of barbarism is now
